

Suggested Reading List and extra information for 'Exceptionally preserved fossils: Windows on the evolution of life', David Siveter, University of Leicester, Wednesday 27 March 2013

Hou Xian-guang, Aldridge, R.J., Bergström, J., Siveter, David J., Siveter, Derek J. & Feng Xiang-hong. 2004. The Cambrian Fossils of Chengjiang, China: The Flowering of Early Animal Life. 233 pp. Blackwell Science Ltd, Oxford.

Briggs, D.E.G., Siveter, Derek J., Siveter, David J., Sutton, M., 2008. Virtual fossils from 425 million-year-old volcanic ash. American Scientist, 96, 474-481.

BBC - Woolly rhino site reveals ancient British temperature

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/nature/21660528>

Science Daily - Rare Fossil related to crabs, lobsters, shrimp: Exceptionally well preserved, including shell and soft parts

<http://www.sciencedaily.com/releases/2012/12/121211193116.htm>

Integrative and Comparative Biology - Exceptional Fossil Preservation and the Cambrian Explosion

<http://intl-icb.oxfordjournals.org/content/43/1/166.full>

Geology Matters - Exceptional Preservation

<http://geologymatters.org.uk/2011/06/09/exceptional-preservation/>

BBC - Nature - Exceptional Preservation

<http://www.bbc.co.uk/nature/fossils/Lagerst%C3%A4tte>

Blog - Mass Extinctions, Lagerstätten, the Cambrian Explosion and Hominids' Obsession with Fossils: Part One and Two

<http://geoheritagescience.wordpress.com/tag/exceptional/>